The Iran Threat Reduction and Syria Human Rights Act of 2024 (H.R. 1905) is a comprehensive piece of legislation that aims to address a range of issues related to Iran and Syria. The bill was introduced in the United States House of Representatives on March 8, 2023, by Congressman Ted Budd (R-NC) and has been referred to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Key Provisions of H.R. 1905

H.R. 1905 contains a number of key provisions, including:

- Sanctions on Iran: The bill would impose new sanctions on Iran, including sanctions on the Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps

(IRGC), its affiliates, and its leaders. The sanctions would target Iran's nuclear program, its ballistic missile program, and its support for terrorism.

- Human rights in Syria: The bill would provide $100 million in humanitarian assistance to Syria and would call for the release of political prisoners in Syria. The bill would also impose sanctions on Syrian officials who are responsible for human rights abuses.
- Diplomacy with Iran: The bill would authorize the President to negotiate with Iran on a new nuclear deal. The new deal would have to be approved by Congress before it could go into effect.
- Reporting requirements: The bill would require the President to submit a report to Congress on Iran's nuclear program, its ballistic missile program, and its support for terrorism. The report would also have to assess the effectiveness of the sanctions imposed by the bill.
