Washington's paintings are often large-scale and feature vibrant colors and expressive brushstrokes. Her sculptures are often made from recycled materials, and they explore themes of identity, community, and the environment.

In addition to her work as an artist, Washington is also a passionate activist. She has worked with organizations such as the Black Lives Matter movement and the National Coalition of 100 Black Women.

Washington's work is a powerful reflection of her own life experiences and her commitment to social justice. It is a reminder that art can be a force for change, and that we all have a role to play in creating a more just and equitable world.
