The woman, who is now in her 60s, was a close friend of the babies' mother. Waters believes that she killed the babies in a fit of jealousy because she was unable to have children of her own.

The book has caused a sensation in Ireland, and it has reignited the debate about the case. Some people believe that the woman who was convicted is innocent, while others believe that she is guilty. The only way to know for sure is to read the book and decide for yourself.

The Evidence Against the Woman

The evidence against the woman is compelling. Waters has uncovered new evidence that shows that she was the last person to see the babies alive. He also has evidence that she lied to the police about her involvement in the case.

One of the most damning pieces of evidence against the woman is a DNA test that shows that she is the mother of one of the babies. The test was conducted in 2018, and it is the first time that DNA evidence has been used to link the woman to the crime.

The woman has denied the charges against her, but the evidence against her is overwhelming. Waters believes that she is guilty of the murders of the Kerry babies, and he hopes that his book will help to bring justice to the victims.

The Impact of the Case

The Kerry Babies Case had a profound impact on Ireland. The case shocked the nation and raised questions about the country's social and moral values. The case also led to a number of changes in the way that the Irish police investigate crimes.
